ELECTION NIGHT TOTALS:

	Owens	Hoffman	Scozzafava
Madison	7,743	8,110	1,128

Unofficial Results. Not including absentee ballots.

Source: Watertown Daily Times, Wednesday, November 3, 2009.

NOTES: On Election Night, a total of 24 districts did not report results, including some in Oswego, Madison, and Oneida counties. By the time the unofficial numbers on this spreadsheet were available, all districts had reported results, even if erroneously. There were 772 additional votes, of which Owens got 316 (41%), Hoffman got 423 (55%), and Scozzafava got 33 (4%). In Fenner, in Hamilton's 3rd district, and in Sullivan's 2nd district, Hoffman initially received zero votes. All of his votes went to Scozzafava, who managed to win all three districts while gaining only 583 (3.5%) of 16,770 votes in the other 52 precincts in the county. Somebody should have noticed this. In Georgetown, the vote count on Election Night was doubled. If one divides the initial counts in half, and subtracts these numbers from the final totals, the results are 2 for Owens, 2 for Scozzafava, and 7 for Hoffman, which quite reasonably represent the absentee ballot count (see corrected line in purple). In Nelson's 1st district, Hoffman initially received an extra 100 votes, probably due to an error in reporting or transcription. Somebody should have noticed this also. The total votes, including void ballots and write-ins, are supposed to match the numbers in the voter signature books, and the election inspectors, by law, are not supposed to leave the polling place until the numbers match.
